

I got the sudden urge to volunteer/help out thanksgiving. I haven't really looked, however. But I started thinking... since I'm so far from home I should just give my time to help serve food to people or something. Again, not committed, but the thought lingers. I am headed to <Nicole> for Thanksgiving, for which I am very thankful, no matter what. Cleaning my Glock took a little longer than expected Saturday. Almost made me late to a movie I joined <redacted>/<redacted>/<redacted> with. Ender's Game was alright. Liked it and now I understand more of what was happening in Rocket Propulsion, ha. Aw dude. When I got to the theatre, I started hustling through the parking lot and noticed a really pretty girl as well (actually noticed her looking over at me). Looked like we were both in a hurry which I found funny and creepy as I was right behind her trying to get to the movie on time. I thought it was nice when I caught her looking/smiling at me on her way out of the theatre after I finally met up with <redacted> and <redacted>. Oh man, indeed. Whatever.